7. Factory council

This council has been dissolved and can only be reconstituted by new elections.

8. Youth section

This section comprises about 800 youths, of which 300 are members of the FDJ. Although the two leaders, Hans Labenski and Rudolf Bernstein, are both members of the SED, they are critical of the administration and are politically moderate.

9. Labor

There is a labor force of 11,000, including 2,600 women. Only about 4,000 people live in Bitterfeld. There are 2,700 resettled persons working there. In addition, about 1500 men from some small firms and specialized firms are employed by the works in connection with a welfare program. Morale is low, and because of Russian and SED actions, these workers have no freedom of speech and are hostile to the authorities.
